President Arthur remained an hour after the ceremony, and other guests until late in the evening. Among the relatives present were Maxey Tabor, son of the senator, the father and mother, two sisters and two brothers of the bride and Miss Lizzie McCourt, of Oshkosh, Wis. One of the senator's presents to his bride was a diamond necklace valued at $75,000.

Star Route Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Mrs. Alice C. Cushman and Mrs. Reerdell testified that while Reerdell was in jail they went to his office and found the papers in confusion. J. W. Donnelly was the next witness. He copied Dorsey's books for Reerdell in '80; recollected accounts of Dorsey and William Smith. Some of the accounts, notably William Smith's, were omitted from the copies. Reerdell marked with a pencil those entries he wished omitted, could not remember the exact amount of the Smith account; believed it was about $50,000. In balancing the books that amount was carried to profit and loss. Two or three accounts were so transferred; did not remember any entry against Belford, Tyner, A. M. Gibson, Lilly McIrew or "J. B. B." Charles E. Gibbs, cashier of the Ebbitt house, took the stand. He had known Reerdell since the fall of '79—between Christmas, '79 and March, '80. His wife and himself copied books and papers and letters for Reerdell. The books copied contained account of expenditures and receipts of mail route business; remembered entries under the heads Reerdell, S. W. and J. W. Dorsey, Steele, Smith, Jones and Jennings. Reerdell said he wanted to send a copy to Dorsey, who was then in New York. After examination of some papers the court adjourned.

Congressional Proceedings.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, March 1. The river and harbor bill was taken up in committee of the whole. The item relative to the Mississippi river having been reached several amendments were offered and lost. The clause as finally agreed to is as follows: That the sum of one million, five hundred thousand dollars is and is hereby appropriated for improvement of the Mississippi river from the head of the passes to Cairo, including the harbors of New Orleans, Natchez, Vicksburg, Memphis, and the reaches at Plum Point and Lake Providence, and for deflection of the waters of the Red and Mississippi rivers from Atchafalaya river; five hundred thousand dollars from Cairo to the Illinois river including Alton harbor; and one hundred and fifty thousand dollars from the Illinois river to Des Moines rapids; to be expended under the direction of the secretary of war, in accordance with plans, specifications, estimates and recommendations of the Mississippi river commission; provided, that no portion of the money hereby appropriated shall be expended at any other points than those herein specified.

The committee then rose.

Moore offered a resolution calling on the secretary of the interior for information as to the amount of Indian trust funds invested in Tennessee bonds and whether Tennessee has made any proposition looking to their settlement.—Referred.

Recess.

In the evening session of the house Hiscock moved to suspend the rules and pass the deficiency appropriation bill.

The motion was agreed to and the bill passed with amendments.

The house then resumed in committee of the whole consideration of the river and harbor bill.

Anderson moved to increase appropriation for removing snags, etc., from the Missouri river from $50,000 to $100,000, to $150,000, and to $80,000 but all the motions were voted down by overwhelming majorities.

Van Voorhis moved to strike out the item for improvement of the Sacramento river. He denied that of the chairman of the committee had not been from California no such item would have been put in it. It is so outrageous, he continued, so damnable, that nobody but a gambler and a cutthroat would think of tacking such a thing as that to such a bill.

Hurd demanded that the words should be taken down.

The words were read at the clerk's desk and reported to the house.

McLane immediately offered a resolution of expulsion

Hiscock—"I know the gentleman will yield to me for a moment. I believe as other members do, that the words were spoken in a heat, provoked as he thought he was by something that had transpired. I believe he has been guilty of an infraction of the privileges of the house, and yet I believe the measure presented is too severe and I trust he may be allowed to make an explanation."

Mills vehemently protested against a man being tried without a hearing, and some apparently sharp words passed between him and McLane, which could not be heard on account of the great confusion in the hall.

Finally Van Voorhis was accorded the floor and standing in the center of the aisle said he had been very earnestly opposed to the river and harbor bill. In opposing it he had found it very difficult to be heard, in consequence of the confusion in the house, so that in addressing he had always found it necessary to speak with good power and difficulty. In other words he had been compelled to raise his voice to its extreme strength He was not an orator as his friend from Maryland (McLane) was, his vocabulary was much more meager than that gentleman's, and sometimes he might express his opinion in words other than the gentleman would use. What he said in this instance before the house was simply to characterize the measure under consideration. He had not the slightest intention to be personal to any one, nor had he supposed he was using language different from what others had used with perfect impunity. So far as the chairman of the committee on commerce was concerned he had not the slightest feeling toward him unfriendly or malicious. He wished to withdraw the words to which exception were taken, stating that when he used them he did not intend to apply them to the chairman of the committee on commerce or make any reflection on him. He wanted to express his disapproval of the measure and he had no intention of making any personal allusion to anybody. He very much regretted that any exception should be taken or that he was under the necessity of withdrawing those words. (Laughter). He desired to make the fullest apology to the house for having said the words.

McLane then withdrew his resolution, but Herbert, of Alabama, offered another resolution censuring Van Voorhis, and advocated its adoption claiming that retraction did not wipe out the offense, and the gentleman should not say on this floor what they would not say outside and convert the house of representatives into a mad-house.

Page asked that the resolution be withdrawn in the interest of business, but Herbert declined.

Thompson, of Kentucky, moved that the resolution be laid on the table. Lost, 66 to 82.

Kasson stated that he could find no precedent for a resolution of censure after an apology had been offered.

Herbert hoped if there was no precedent for the resolution the house would make one on this occasion. (Applause.)

The resolution was lost: 66 to 78.

During this scene there was a good deal of excitement manifested and a number of anything but complimentary remarks were made in regard to Van Voorhis' conduct by members congregated in groups listening to the discussion

The house then went into committee of the whole and Van Voorhis withdrew his amendment, stating that he had said all he desired to say.

Before the committee rose the following amendments were made: On motion of Bayne directing the secretary of war to make such regulations as necessary to protect channels of rivers and harbors from injury by deposit of refuse or other matter; on motion of Lynch, providing that no convict labor shall be employed on improvements authorized A large number of amendments were lost.

The committee then rose and reported the bill to the house. Anderson moved to recommit the bill with instructions to the committee to report back a bill appropriating $3,000,000 to be expended under the direction of the secretary of war. Lost. The bill then passed, yeas 172, nays 90.

On motion of Van Horn a bill passed authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Missouri river near Kansas City.

Adjourned.

SENATE.

The president laid before the senate a communication from the secretary of the interior announcing completion of the list of pensioners with their addresses, rates of pension, &c.

The provision for payment of old settlers' or western Cherokee Indians' claims the report from the committee was struck out.

Vest offered an amendment to the paragraph appropriating $40,000 for the protecting and improvement of Yellowstone National park, providing for a superintendent at a salary of $2,000, and ten assistants at $500 each, to be appointed by the secretary of the interior, to reside continuously in the park, and to have the duty of protecting game, timber and other objects of interest, the balance to be expended in construction of suitable roads and bridges under direction of the engineers, an officer to be detailed by the secretary of war. Adopted.

The committee having reported a provision authorizing the secretary of the interior to lease for not more than ten years small tracts not exceeding eighty acres for the erection of hotels, etc., Vest moved to reduce the quantity of land to be leased in one tract to ten acres. Agreed to.

Vest offered another amendment providing that not more than ten acres shall be leased to any one person or corporation and that no tract shall be leased within one-quarter of a mile of any of the geysers or the Yellowstone falls. Agreed to.

The item for fees of court clerks providing that where the same person holds the office of clerk in both circuit and district courts in any district the pay of both shall not exceed $3,500 a year was struck out and limitation of $5,000 for clerk of supreme court of the United States was extended to $6,000.

The Robber Detectives

WASHINGTON, March 1. Washington was treated to a great local sensation, in the indictment of three detectives, who for many years have been prominent on the Metropolitan police force, a well known private detective, and several dealers in thieves' plunder, and a noted criminal lawyer, A. B. Williams. The indictments are all either for conspiring with thieves to rob, or sharing their plunder. This wholesome result is the outcome of active work on the part of a committee of citizens. Their work, while only partially completed, has clearly shown that the national capital has long been at the mercy of organized gangs of burglars and thieves, known to the detectives and a portion of the police, and acting in full collusion with these officers. The A. B. Williams indicted has long been notorious hereas a man believed to have much to do with jury fixing and other shuttar jobs. He was one of the chief actors in the safe burglary conspiracy. He is now indicted for receiving a stolen watch and chain.

The developments made to-day showed that these thieves and their accomplices were in the habit of gathering into their "fence" the solid silver stolen throughout the city, melting it into bars, sending it to the mint in Philadelphia, and having it coined and returned to them. The Metropolitan police, to which these detectives belonged, is a force paid jointly by the government and by the district.

Trying to Tax Government Property

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The government in the name of the purchaser of the old post office property in New York, will ask for an injunction to restrain the collector of that city from leasing the building for non payment of taxes. The claim of the city of New York against the government, for the time the property was leased to private parties, is pronounced illegal by law officers of the treasury department. The collector, however, has proceeded in the usual manner, and has advertised the property for lease

The secretary of the treasury, when the property was sold, gave a warrantee deed instead of the usual quitclaim in government sales. The purchasers look to the government for protection against the claim assessed on the property. Secretary Folger addressed a letter to the district attorney in New York, asking whether it would be the best plan to get out an injunction against the New York collector of taxes or let the property be leased for non-payment, and then bring a suit of ejectment. The district attorney replied today that in his opinion an injunction would be the proper proceeding to take in the case. Accordingly, the bank company which has purchased the property will be advised to make the necessary application in their own name as owners, but government officials will act for them.

It is the opinion of the secretary of the treasury, the solicitor's office and the district attorney in New York, that the assessment for taxes of property owned by the government, no matter how much it is used, is a proceeding that can not be sustained in court. This particular site was ceded to the United States without any restriction or conditions, and the government, as absolute owner, had a perfect right to lease, rent, sell or use as it saw fit. The amount claimed for taxes is in the neighborhood of $14,000.

Mining Failure.

SALT LAKE, March 1.—The total indebtedness of the Empire mine is $65,000, $20,000 to Crowell, the balance to Utah parties. Suits for this amount are now pending. Crowell has put in $200,000. The location of the mine is on the strike and one-fenth of a mile west of the Ontario with bunches and chimneys of good ore, which seem to make it an unusually promising enterprise. Had it proved a second Ontario it would be worth ten millions. The owner of the Ontario once offered the Ontario for a quarter of a million. He has since taken out twelve millions and paid five millions in dividends. Risks must be taken but it is believed much less than ordinary in this case. The Empire ground is opened 500 feet deep and four levels the same length. Nearly half a million has been expended. During the burning of hoisting works, injudicious purchase of a mill before needed, trouble from flooding, a fair amount of work has been done for the money. The owners had the utmost confidence and bought in one tenth at $45,000, sold cheaply when the stock was $10 a share, all paying assessments, even to the mine superintendent with twenty years' experience in the Comstock and elsewhere. People here object to condemn it.

A Test Case

MILWAUKEE, March 1.—This afternoon papers in the suit of John Gilbert against the owners of the Newhall were filed. Damages are set at $20,000, $20,000 on account of the death of his wife and $500 for medical attendance. The complaint is very voluminous. The main point is that the building was on fire often and only shortly previous to the destruction; that despite this defendants failed to provide suitable means of escape and means for alarming guests and a watchman to detect them out. The result of the suit is looked forward to with a good deal of interest as it is understood to be a test case.

Mormon Victory.

SALT LAKE, March 1.—The supreme court of the territory has granted stay of proceeding pending appeal to the Washington supreme court in applications for mandamus to compel turning county officers over to appointees of the government. Its effect annuls the Hoar amendment. All county officers hold till the August election.

Criminal Captured

SANTA FE, March 1.—A telegram received by Gov. L. A. Sheldon to-day states that Hauck, alias Doc Davis, wanted in Ohio for murder and who formerly resided at Albuquerque, has been captured at Los Angeles.

GENERAL MATTERS.

Indications of the Number of Visitors That Will Crowd Denver

The Coming Encampment

DENVER, March 1.—Nothing has yet been heard from the meeting of passenger agents at Omaha at which rates between the Missouri river and Denver for the Grand Army encampment was to be settled The veterans ask for fifteen dollars round trip rate and are still hopeful it will be granted A gentleman who has just returned from a trip through Nebraska says the Grand Army men there are quite as much interested in the coming encampment at Denver as Colorado veterans are and that they will turn out in full force to attend But little doubt is felt now that, as the time for the encampment draws near, it will be the largest gathering ever held anywhere between the Missouri river and the Pacific coast Every room at the Windsor hotel is already engaged and other hotels are daily receiving applications for apartments Great as the crowd will be, however, Grand Army men of the city will be able to take care of it

Pardoned by the Governor

DENVER, March 1.—Governor Grant to-day pardoned Peter Smith, who was sentenced a year ago last month to a year and a half in the penitentiary. The crime for which Smith was committed was assault with intent to kill.

A Pugilist Killed

CHICAGO, March 1.—Between eight and nine o'clock to-night James Elliott, the pugilist, and Jere Dunn, a well known sporting man, and "man about town," met in the saloon and restaurant of Wm. L. Laugdon, alias Appleton, alias Appetite Bill, ex-bunko and confidence man, and began shooting, with the result that Elliott was killed and Dunn wounded in two places. The trouble dates back to the time when Harry Hill and others came here from New York to meet Jem Mace and Slade with the view of arranging a match with Sullivan, whose backer was Jere Dunn At the same time Elliott, backed by Parson Davies, was seeking to make a match with Slade. Harry Hill, when somewhat mellow, was interviewed and in the course of his talk reflected severely on Elliott's courage. Elliott began hunting for Hill, who immediately took the train for New York. Elliott in an interview said Dunn had incited him to make these remarks in order to cause a quarrel between himself and Hill in order that Dunn might have an excuse to shoot Elliott. Dunn in a subsequent interview let it be known that he would shoot Elliott on sight, and as he is a man of unquestionable nerve and determination no doubt was felt that a shooting match would occur when they met.

To night Elliott and Plaisted, the barman, entered Appetite Bill's saloon to get something to eat, Shortly after Dunn entered. Accounts differ as to subsequent proceedings. One account says Dunn made a threatening demonstration, whereupon Elliott rose from the table, took up a chair and went at Dunn with it, Dunn meanwhile emptying one revolver and drawing another.

Dunn's own statement and that of an eyewitness is to the effect that he was not aware of Elliott's presence till the latter fired one shot passing under the scalp across the top of the head and another passing through the left forearm. Dunn then drew a revolver and joined in the fusillade. A crowd of twenty-five persons were in the place, making a hasty exit. Dunn fired five shots, Elliott four. Police arrived, arrested Dunn, put Elliott in a dying condition into a patrol wagon and started for the county hospital. Elliott died on the way there and the body was taken to the morgue. The fatal shot was in the stomach.

Dunn is a partner of Mike Rankin in a breeding farm on an island on the Detroit river, where they own a number of thoroughbred horses.

Fatal Fall.

TOPEKA, Ks., March 1.—A sad accident occurred at the capitol building this afternoon to a four-year old girl, a child of Mr. A. Ritchey, ex-superintendent of public schools in Waubaunsee county, and caused temporary adjournment of the house. The child was playing on the west portico of the building and, getting too near the edge, fell off, a distance of twenty feet, to the stone pavement. Her head was seriously cut and her body so badly bruised that recovery is impossible.

Parnell's Plans.

LONDON, March 1.—Parnell wrote to James Mooney, president of the National Land League of America, yesterday informing him that if the commons refuses a second reading of the land bill which he will move on the 14th inst., and if there is no prospect of further legislation for Ireland during the present session of parliament, he will forthwith proceed to the United States to attend the proposed convention at Philadelphia.

Innocent Indians Killed.

SANTA FE, March 1.—A special to the New Mexican from El Paso, Texas, says a party of ranchmen west of Chihuahua captured an Indian camp a few days ago, killing twelve bucks and capturing thirty squaws and papooses. Tuesday the victorious men marched through the city of Chihuahua with the scalps of innocent Indians on the end of long poles.

The Poor Indian.

SANTA FE, March 1.—A United States marshal's posse returned to-day from a seventeen days' chase through the mountains of southern Colorado, after four prisoners under indictment in the United States court for selling liquor to Indians. Their names are Wm. Bowen, J. W. Baker, James Harris and Harry Duffy. The latter is a member of the notorious Dye and Smith gang, who are now serving terms in the penitentiary for violation of liquor laws regarding its sale to Indians.

New Railroad.

SANTA FE, March 1.—A Deming special to the New Mexican says: Track-laying on the Deming, Silver City & Pacific railway commenced to-day. It is expected one mile a day will be laid.

Mayor Robbins' Administration

To the Editor of the Gazette:

Having noticed several little flings lately, either by or through the Republic, at the present city administration, I have been thinking of the animus of the reflections.

In the Republic of February 28th "One of the voters" is pleased to take Mr. Robbins by the ear for the "cursed abundance" of whisky and water with which we have been "blessed" for the past year Now this gentleman, with many others, probably, does not fully realize that Mr. Robbins has no more authority for ferreting out whisky violations than has any other citizen he is not paid for detective service Moreover, if he were to turn here in such service he could not secure a single conviction without the sympathy and co-operation of the council and citizens It is, furthermore a notorious fact that the present "administration," in the major part, is composed of the preceding one, not too friendly to the newly elected members as for instance the boyish flings at Treasurer Hooker a few months since, and the sneers at Mr. Robbins in the beginning of his term, all show The only offense being, that these gentlemen were elected by their fellow citizens to fill offices that were supposed to be the gifts of the people only

I am glad to note the frankness of this correspondent in designating the side of his choice in the election and am not at all surprised at his preference But I respectfully call attention to the following facts.

First—"Abundance" in two coveted articles of which the "south end" had only a meager share, formerly

Third—While not desirous, at this time, of criticising the council appointments, it remains a fact that the mayor has acted officially impartial.

Besides these favors the city at large has had all that was good in former administrations, building bonds excepted, for which no fault is responsible.

As for ranking—bombast—, I decline—it will require more than one man or newspaper to make them this spring.

Yours for FAIR PLAY.

COLORADO SPRINGS, March 1st.

FINE ARTS.

The Art Career of Mr. L. Birge Harrison.

Several days ago there arrived in Colorado Springs Mr. L. Birge Harrison, an artist of considerable note who will remain here three or four months, and should he be satisfied with our climate may remain permanently. Mr. Harrison has just come from Paris where his art career was cut short by illness. The following scrap from the Boston Post will convey some idea of his former doings and his merits as an artist:

Mr. John A. Lowell, who brought over from Europe this last summer a number of the best paintings of Mr. L. Birge Harrison, has received a letter from that young and talented artist, giving a brief account of his art career. Those who have seen and admired his charming pictures in the gallery of Messrs. Lowell & Co. will doubtless be glad to know something more about the personality of the artist than is apparent in his work. He is but 28 years of age, and was born and brought up in Philadelphia. After leaving school, he was engaged in business and had no opportunity to study art seriously until about six years ago. But, he says, "I had one great advantage, however, and that was, I commenced and completed my studies uninterruptedly in Paris. I did not have anything to unlearn, as I knew practically nothing at the time." Going to Paris, six years ago, he commenced studying with Sargent, Beckwith and others under Carolus Duran, but finding him a very bad master of drawing he changed to the tuition of Cabanal, in the Beaux arts, where he remained off and on for three years, sticking close to drawing, and painting in the country in the summer months. It was not until 1881 that he sent his first picture to the Salon, where it was handsomely received He afterwards painted on the coast of Brittany and at Grez, making very rapid progress. In this year's Salon he exhibited two works, one being his "November," which was purchased by the French government, and will be sent around to the different exhibitions in France. The companion picture was highly praised by the French critics for its qualities of light and out-door feeling. Another picture painted about the same time, entitled "On Rendezvous," a twilight with figure of a girl in a boat, was purchased by a prominent Belgian collector. These, with the two pictures bought by Dr Lowell and now in his gallery, are all the important pictures that Mr. Harrison has painted, though he has done a number of smaller ones. Mr. Harrison's theories of art work are so sensible and valuable that they are well worth repeating here. He says "I think I owe my rather sudden success to the fact that I was in no hurry to paint pictures and that I did not try to exhibit until I had developed my talent pretty well in the schools; also to my habit of never repeating myself and of making each picture a separate and close study from nature By this means I am all the time gaining experience, and each picture is apt to be better than the last. I have always intended to make figures in the open air my line, and all my study, even the school studies, have been directed to that end. As I always go to nature for my inspiration, and never paint a picture that is not suggested to me by some thing that has come before my eyes, my pictures have generally been tolerably original."

MINING MATTERS.

Notes Gleaned from Our Exchanges.

Bonanza Enterprise.

THE FAMOUS RAWLEY.

An old, experienced and intelligent miner, who has been engaged in mining in different parts of this state, Utah, California and Nevada for the past twenty years, was in our office one day this week just after a visit to the Rawley mine, and we do not think it possible for a man to be more enthusiastic over anything than he was over this wonderful mine. "Why, sir," said he, "there is nothing like it in the world. They are literally 'snowed in' with mineral. Every pound that is being taken from the mine is being piled up for the mill. There is no waste dump to the mine, and not an ounce of waste dirt coming out either shaft or drift. I tell you, sir, it is simply wonderful. I have been in all the mining sections of this country—seen the Father De Smet mine of Deadwood, the Custer mine of Wood River, and the Comstock of Nevada, and am willing to stake my reputation 'long side of all that I am worth that the Rawley has the biggest ore body ever discovered in the United States. It double discounts anything that I ever saw." After our visitor had cooled down some, we asked him how the mine was opened. "By a shaft about 100 feet deep 90 feet of which is sunk through clean, solid mineral. This shaft intersects the lower tunnel at its present depth, where a chamber is being made, with a view of continuing the shaft to an indefinite depth. The lower and main tunnel is in about 250 feet, through a solid body of mineral, and looks like a hole in a solid chunk of rubysite. In no place in the mine that I could find, have they cut through the mineral." How about the grade of the ore, we asked "With the oceans that are in sight, it makes but a little difference, but I should judge that the majority of it will mill from 100 to 300 ounces, while a large portion of it will return 800 and 900 ounces per ton." How much of this ore is there out and ready for shipment? I would say, from a rough estimate, about 1,200 tons But that is nothing to base the output of the mine upon It can to-day produce enough ore to keep the Pueblo works running And why only four or five men are at work, and the ore is not being marketed is one of those things about mining that only the owners and manipulators understand." What do you think the mine is worth? "That is a question I cannot answer To a corporation or individual with money enough to put up works and open the mine, it is worth millions, for, mark my words, just as soon as the mine is opened and made to produce its full ca, ity it will make a record beyond the wildest imaginings, it will prove a 'world beater.' Promising to give us his opinion of the camp after "looking around a few days" our visitor left.

ANCIENT MINES.

Review Press.

We learn from Mr. E. S. Lockett, formerly living on Cochetopa creek but now a resident of Gunnison, that sometime in the month of May, 1881, while prospecting in the Cochetopa district he discovered some veins of mines which apparently have not been worked for the past one hundred years. The distance is about thirty-five miles a little south of east from Gunnison. There are five shafts no one knows anything, but Mr. Lockett believes some of them are not less than from one to two hundred feet deep. He has explored some of them to a depth of twenty feet. All of them have well defined rock walls and the veins are from four to six feet thick. The character of the rock is supposed to be hard carbonate From all indications it is believed that a vast amount of work on them has been done as wood lands are found and the appearance of everything about the vicinity indicates that such work dates back to a very high antiquity.

The tunnel is said to be a good one. Mr. Lockett says he explored it for a distance of forty feet where he found a neat room, nine feet square, in good shape, but he has no idea of the extent of the tunnel. It is his opinion, however, that it extends several hundred feet.

Of the mineral bearing rock gathered up by Mr. Lockett, we learn that assays made ran as follows: One six ozs. silver and a trace of gold; another 86 ozs. silver and 3 ozs. gold; another 241 ozs. silver and a trace of gold. It is believed that the Cochetopa district will yet show up some good paying mines and that it will be a lively camp during the present year.

THE JIMTOWN CRAZE.

Denver Times.

The Jimtown excitement continues. It is yet too soon to say whether the camp is half what it is claimed for it, or is altogether worthless, as not a few people are not afraid to stake their reputation it is. Certain it is that the camp is enjoying the biggest boom that any one mining camp has had during the past two years. Hundreds of persons are pouring into it daily, some of them with money in their pockets to invest and others with a heart full of pluck and a pick to try their luck at prospecting. A number of Denverites who have gone up to look at the camp have returned without having located or bought a claim. The excitement which prevails there is so great that it is impossible to make a fair estimate of the work of the camp Fifty and more persons left Denver to visit the new fields this morning. From the experience which a party of young prospectors from Denver had in Jimtown a few days ago one can form some idea of the present condition of the camp.

Said one of the returned mine seekers: "The time is passed when a man can go up there and look for a mine. If there are any mines there they were all taken up weeks ago. Ground to dig in is at a premium, and a pretty high one at that. The area which the camp covers is small, anyway, and in the confusion of the new-comers it is almost impossible to know whether you are standing on your head or your heels. There are hundreds of tents pitched and a few frame shanties are being put up. Every inch of ground which shows even the slightest possibility of containing mineral is taken up. Some fellows have driven stakes into the ground not far from the good claims and they are actually charging three and five hundred dollars for permission to dig there. Just think of that. We concluded that such prospecting was too high for our blood; so we came back to Denver."

Pumice stone equal in every respect to that imported from Italy and Germany has been found near Gunnison City.

In accordance with the instructions of the city council the marshal of Conejos arrests all gamblers once a month.

We are very glad to publish this correspondence in regard to the coming city election from our pastor. Lively canvassing is likely to suggest some bad plans.

Governor Tabor was not cast down last night. He is crowding all that he can into his short administration. His wife should be very happy. She is the wife of a governor and received a diamond necklace valued at $10,000.

Denver is doing all she can to prevent the introduction of small-pox in that city. Could not our board of health take some precautions? Our Mexican visitors at the depot, that we have reported to us, that no suspicion has been kept off at the station.

The Tribune never favors a party ticket in spring in the Denver municipal election. This is probably wise, but it ought to be plainly understood that independent republicans will not support any candidate who is not honest and competent.

The Leadville Democrat gives the following bit of politics which has its bearings in the contest last fall: "Tabor, of the Lake City land district, favored Mr. Wolcott last fall. Whether it is probably why the Gunnison land district was made to take in a great deal of Mr. Otero's territory. Campbell's 'tribute' was paid given, and the 'money in republican' ranks is increasing."

The only defense yet made of Secretary Teller is that he cannot examine every [illegible] his office, which is true. But this is no [illegible]. He gave his personal attention to particular cases should not be [illegible] until it was ascertained that they were not fraudulently obtained. Judge Noeb in his letter says if Secretary Teller will say that he investigated the matter as he promised and found it all right, he will give some interesting testimony. Under the circumstances Mr. Teller ought to say something, and his friends should not [illegible] the charge too summarily.

One dispatch from a few days ago contained an alarming dispatch about smallpox in Leadville. The Herald gives a more subdued account in the following: "The Denver Times takes an alarmist view of the small-pox visitation upon this city. For its benefit it may be stated that the disease has not gained the upper hand of the authorities, and the alarm is not general. In fact, the existence of small-pox in this city is seldom mentioned in conversation. The dread disease is here, but has not as yet taken able to cause a general scare or sensation. Every precaution is being taken to prevent its spread, and there is comparatively little danger of its gaining [illegible] or being considered to [illegible]."

The Denver Times publishes a letter from Arizona, which does not speak well of Secretary Teller's Indian policy. It will be remembered that Secretary Teller sought to have Mr. Wilcox re-appointed as United States marshal in December, 1881, but was unsuccessful because so many grave charges against his character were preferred. After Secretary Teller took the charge of the interior department, he appointed this Wilcox Indian agent at the San Carlos agency in Arizona. It was a surprise to many because Wilcox was known to be unreliable to Teller as well as to other people and it was a foregone conclusion that there would be a scandal. It was only a question of how long before it came out. It is now out. The charges against him are for appropriating government property for himself and for attempting to do the trading, a thing which the law directly forbids. The complaints, well supported by affidavit, have been pigeon-holed in the interior department. This does not look well. When we remember the interest that Mr. Teller took in this appointment, we may feel sure he will not be likely to neglect this fellow now.

Last Saturday night Governor Butler of Massachusetts was entertained at the Saturday Night club of New York. Judge Stanley Matthews in his speech suggested that Harvard should give him the degree of D.D. instead of L.L.D., the latter being the degree always conferred on the governor of Massachusetts. This suggestion was endorsed by Judge Tourgee, who said the degree would stand for director of divinity. The wit of this will be best appreciated by those who have read the proclamation by him for a fast day. It is much nearer the Puritan documents of two hundred years ago than the customary fast day proclamation of the present time. It designates Thursday, April 5, as a proper time to avoid "a sense of absolute dependence upon the beneficent parent of [mankind," and of confessing "numerous and aggravated offenses against the holy will and commandments;" recommends the opening of all churches that "we may unitedly humble ourselves in the presence of Almighty God, and acknowledge with deep contrition our manifold sins and transgressions; that we may devoutly deprecate His judgments and implore [illegible] forgiveness through the merits of our blessed Lord and Redeemer." In this proposals to suspend [illegible] the principles of the lottery, by which "they [illegible] and transmitted to us the functionable form [illegible] of the Christian religion, of law and liberty," and to implore "His [illegible] our backsliding, and to restore us to that temper and conduct by which alone we can hope to be happy in this world and that which is to come." Special objects for prayer, such as agriculture, manufactures, the fisheries and institutions of learning are then enumerated, and the remarkable document concludes with an appeal to the people to refrain all unnecessary labor and recreation, and by ministers to "lead their flocks with the divine word, and not discourse upon political and other matters in which they divert the serious thoughts of the people from the worship of the Father."

Whatever Governor Butler's knowledge of depth of feeling may have been in writing the above, we have no right to consider. It is a grave one, much better in kind than most of those of his predecessors. Certainly it shows that Butler is not the buffoon he has been supposed to be.

PERSONAL.

A Londoner advertises a gentle widow with a heart that means anyone and making a noise and pay. Don't think, if you can't a gentleman and make a noise then!

Governor Alexander H. Rice has just had presented to him an engrossed copy, handsomely carved with a running grape vine, on maple and birch, and a complete set of furniture.

Ex-Speaker Keifer recently told a friend that he had not seen the house of lords in session since he retired from the cabinet, and he does not intend to ever go upon the floor of either house again.

At Elmwood Cap. George A. Shaw is a man of 87 years who is now living with his sixth wife. He has fifty-three children, and at a recent reunion of his family more than 300 of his descendants were present.

A pair of American fish eagles have made their home near Sand Point, Wayne county, Michigan on the margin of Lake Erie, for many years, and it is hoped they are nearly, if not quite, 75 years old.

The question which Sierra is most distressed about, whether the Lyman Gardner is taking it according to the natural principles of science, it can't tell which is the cheaper for a wife or cook.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Governor Bate, of Tennessee, has doubled up the reward of $500 for Polk's arrest. Sheriff Morrill and Gerber get $250, and Detectives Pryde, of Memphis, and Fields and Porter, of Nashville, $100 each in addition to expenses.

Congressman-elect Perry, of Iowa, according to the Commercial Gazette of Pittsburg, was a schoolmate of the Hon. James G. Blaine at Washington College, Pennsylvania. They became in the same literary society, and young Blaine became ambitious to be elected president of the Concerning the votes, he asked Perry if he would support him. "Why," was the reply, "you don't know anything about parliamentary rules." "You can't preside." "No, that's so," responded Blaine; "but I can consult Cushing's Manual to-morrow." He did so in a few days, and was elected president of the society.

Whist Stories.

London Society.

Not only, says Mr. Abraham Hayward, did we never meet with or hear of a whist player who could venture to beat with Turf—that is, to give the odds and win, but we have heard an excellent one adopt the aphorism attributed to the Iron duke, that a battle was a game in which those who made the fewest blunders won. Or a parallel may be drawn between the paladin of the whist table and the damsel in the play, who told her married sister's fault upon herself, and is thus apostrophized by her brother-in-law: "Quoi vous, Marie! vous, la vertu même!" Her reply is exquisite for feminine self-knowledge and tact: "O, la vertu, la vertu! tout le monde a ses heures où on manque." The most consummate skill, like Virtue herself, is not safe against a slip. Did not the late Earl Granville lose a rubber, after giving the long odds in thousands, by forgetting the seven of hearts? Did not Henry Lord de Ros lose one, on which £3,000 were staked by miscounting a trump? Did not, only the other day, the Daniel or Gamaliel of the Turf club fail to detect a palpable revoke, to the astonishment and (it must be owned) gratification of the bystanders, some of whom went home consoled and elevated in their own self-esteem by his default?

A curious piece of evidence was given at the De Ros trial by a distinguished whist player, who stated that he had played regularly for about the same stakes during twenty years; that his winnings had averaged £1,500 a year, making £30,000 in the aggregate, but that he had undergone two consecutive years of ill luck, during which he had lost £9,000. Another witness, a captain in the navy who had realized a regular income by his skill, was asked whether he was not in the habit of dining on boiled chicken and lemonade when he had serious work on hand, and the alleged training (which he denied) was no imputation on his sagacity. No man flushed with food or wine, vinegre cirogne gravatus, will play his best, and every man who regards his purse or his reputation should leave off when he finds the sensation of confusion or fatigue stealing upon him.

A master of the art—Lord H. Bentinck—who had survived a generation, was asked who were the best whist-players he ever knew. He instantly named three: The late Earl Granville, the Hon. George Anson and Henry Lord de Ros. On being asked for the fourth, he paused, but there was no need of hesitation: "Ed ly, anche sono pittore." No one would have accused him of undue assumption if he had followed the example of Lamartine, who, on being asked who was the first lying French poet, drew himself up with an air of offended dignity and replied: "Moi." The palm was popularly considered to lie between Lord Henry De [illegible] and Mr. Clay, whose styles were so essentially different that an instructive parallel might be drawn between them after the manner of Plutarch. We regret to say that great whist players resemble rival beauties in one respect. Rarely will one admit the distinguished merit, not to say superiority, of another.

The De Ros affair was a sad blow and a temporary discredit to whist-players, for some of them were unluckily seduced into acting on the penultimate. Lord Hertford's maxim: "What would you do if you saw a man cheating at cards?" "Bet on him, to be sure," Lord De Ros' methods of aiding his skill were only available for one hand in four—when he dealt. He then occasionally contrived to turn an honor by what is called "sauter la coupe" and, having marked the higher honors with his nail, he could see to whom they fell. During the burst of scandalous comment which followed the exposure, one of the "bitterest fools" of society, who would never have been admitted to his intimacy, drawled out at Crockford's: "I would leave my card at his house, but I fear he would mark it." The retort was ready: "That would depend upon whether he considered it a high honor." This repartee, popularly assigned to Lord Alvanley, was made by Charles Kemeys Kemeys—the youngest brother of the three official judges of the race—whose untimely and deeply regretted death in the Straits of the Bosphorus [illegible] with not the regret to cloud the [illegible] of the day on the occasion of which we have specially spoken of.

There is a well authenticated story of the late Lord Chesterfield's devotion to whist. In order to get out in the course of the afternoon to the Park, he ordered his carriage and four ponies to be at Grosvenor's at 4. They were kept waiting till 10, when he sent word to say that he should not be ready for another hour or two and that the horses had better be dismissed. They changed at the stables in the interests of six hours before to started. When the party rose they were up to their ankles in cards, and the aristocrat, it was reported was a loser to the tune of £9000 or £10,000. About the time there was a set at Brooks's—Lord Sefton, an excellent player, being one—who played 100 guinea points, besides bets. We can remember any losses of £500 and £600 on the rubber, but £5 points are above the average; and many of the best players are content with 2 points (10 bets at the Turf and ten shillings at the Portland. A good deal of money is turned on whist to-day in a less costly manner than to deal but on the rubber after the first game.

There used to be high play at Berlin and Vienna. Count Fuchs was enough at a single sitting of Prince John of Liechtenstein to build and furnish a chateau. It was shown to the lover, who on being asked how he liked it, replied, "Fy de bois! cela a besoin d'être changé en carreaux." There is an excellent anecdote of Count Bernstorff, late secretary of foreign affairs in America, which justifies a surmise that he also is a performer, though, like a good many other inveterate whist players, he seems to think that everything is fair at cards. His left-hand adversary—probably an Englishman—made so desperate, though successful, a finesse, that his excellency uttered an exclamation of surprise, whereupon the gentleman offered a bet that the count himself should acknowledge it a better. A second reason for his play. It was taken, and he then coolly said, "Why, I looked over your hand." The gentleman must have qualified under the Artful Dodger, who, while playing dummy in Fagin's den, is commended for "wisely regulating his play by the result of his observation on his neighbour's cards."

Some forty years since a remarkable set used to meet in Berlin at Prince Wittgenstein's, including Count Alopeus, the Russian minister, General Noailles, Henry Bulwer (then attached to the Berlin embassy), and the Duke of Cumberland (afterward King of Hanover). Another of the royal family, the late Duke of York, played whist a great deal, and lost a large amount of money at it—as well he might, for he invariably showed by his face whether he was satisfied or dissatisfied with his cards, and played them indifferently into the bargain. He played four points (£20) and fifty bet, making the full of bumper rubber two hundred and fifty pounds. One evening, having won three full rubbers of a wealthy parvenu, he was reluctantly reminded that there was a prior loss of some four thousand pounds to be set off. "No, no," he protested, "that will never do: we have nothing to do with old scores;" and the man was fool enough to pay. There is no royal road to whist, and as royal personages with the best natural dispositions rarely submit to be taught, it is fortunate that the kingly power has been limited since Canute, who had a courtier hanged for checkmating him, and would doubtless have had him drawn and quartered for claiming a revoke at whist. This great and wise king had evidently come to the conclusion that the occasional execution of a courtier pour encourager les autres inculcated a moral more practically than getting wet feet through the disobedience of the waves.

When Napoleon was at Wurtemburg he used to play whist in the evening, but not for money, playing for and inattentively. One evening, when the queen dowager was playing with him against her husband and his daughter—the Queen of Westphalia, the wife of Jerome the king stopped Napoleon, who was taking up a trick that belonged to them, saying, "Sire, on ne joue pas ici en conquerant."

It must be admitted, as a partial excuse for absolutism in such matters, that the spirit of play absorbs or deadens every other feeling. Horace Walpole relates that, on a man falling down in a fit before the bay-window at White's, odds were instantly offered to a large amount against his recovery; and that, on its being proposed to bleed him, the operation was vehemently resisted as being unfair. When Lord Thanet was in the Tower, for the O'Connor riot, three friends the Duke of Bedford, the Duke de Laval and Captain Smith—were admitted to play whist with him, and remain until the lock-up hour of 11. Early in the sitting Captain Smith fell back in a fit of apoplexy, and one of the party rose to call for help. "Stop," cried another, "we shall be turned out if you make a noise; let our friend alone until 11; we can play dummy, and he will be none the worse, for I can read death in his face."

The Next European War.

St. James' Gazette.

An article on "Strategy" in the current number of the Deutsche Rundschau, by Baron Von der Goltz, contains some interesting speculations on the next European war. The forces engaged in such a war would, he says, be far greater even than those which were brought into the field in 1870. A single army of five corps occupies eight English miles on the battle field. But the entire force of a great European state now consists of four or five such armies; and the disasters consequent on the collision of two or more such states would naturally be in proportion to their strength—especially as, thanks to the development of the feeling of nationality, wars will in the future be fought not from police, but from national hostility. Armies will assume the character of great popular migrations and will be numbered not by hundreds of thousands but by millions of armed men. This will diminish their mobility. Germany will not again find an open country with excellent roads, and, however excellent her commanders may be, she will not have the chance again of advancing into an enemy's country with such rapidity and success. The characteristics of the wars of the future will be a slow advance, constant bringing up of reserves and defeat caused only by complete exhaustion; flank attacks will be made by armies instead of, as in 1870, by brigades or divisions, and the district used as a battle-field will be entirely devastated. The feeling of nationality will also make it much more difficult to end a war than formerly. Austria would not venture to take back Lombardy and Venice, even if her victorious armies should penetrate to Naples, and Germany would not have been able in 1870 to annex Burgundy and Champagne, although they were at her mercy.

By Universal Accord,

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long laboratory and successful clinical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value, and curative powers no other Pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and restore to health action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.

Various Causes—

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed, or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless; contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it keeps long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume.

Killing Cattle by Electricity

London Telegraph

An interesting project for a simpler and more humane method of dispatching animals than any at present in use is suggested by our compassionate contemporary the Zoophilist. In its last issue Mr. Lane Fox describes an easily constructed apparatus for putting an end to worn-out horses, asses, or even cattle used for food, by the electric discharge. An ordinary stall has an iron plate fastened upon its floor large enough for a horse or bullock to stand upon With this plate is connected the negative pole of an electric condenser, formed of alternate layers of tin foil and tissue paper soaked in paraffin This condenser is charged from an ordinary coil to its full capacity of a hundred "micro-farads," and is to be discharged at an electromotive force of 15,000 "volts," which produces a one inch spark The animal to be dispatched has the top of its head and also its feet and legs wetted with salt water. It is then led into the stall with its hoofs resting on the iron plate. The brass knob which makes the positive pole, and has an insulating handle, is then applied to the forehead of the animal, which falls down stone dead the moment the contact is effected. There can be no kind of death more free from pain as well as from all the horrid circumstances now attending the slaughter of favorite animals which old age, accident or disease has rendered it necessary to kill. Everybody knows how sadly often the pistol or the knife now in use produces lingering agonies, and how shocking it seems to commit an old servant to the brutal hands and clumsy methods of such as too generally undertake the duty Here is a plan which will obviate all this unpleasant experience and give to many a faithful animal an easy euthanasia. It well deserves to be put into practice and to receive public encouragement. There may be objections, perchance, to such a mode of slaughtering animals intended for human food because of the effects produced on the flesh by the electric current, but possibly before capital punishment is abolished, death by judicial lightning after such a fashion may be adopted in place of the hideous violence of the long drop Certainly as a project for killing worn-out quadrupeds it appears as effective as it is kindly, and the Zoophilist merits public thanks for the suggestion, of which we have here given but an outline.

There was a large sale of seats for "Baron Rudolph" at Howbert Bros.' yesterday.

Mr. F. E. Robinson has placed a handsome marble soda fountain in his store for the summer season.

Yesterday was the first day of spring and to say the least it opened under very favorable auspices.

The street north of the new hotel, to be known as North Park Place, has been surveyed and will be graded at once.

Charles W. Howbert went to Denver yesterday afternoon to meet Mr. George E. Van Dyne who is now on his way from the east and expected to arrive here to-day.

Pueblo will offer $6,000 at its racing meeting in April as prizes. Can we not have a meeting in Colorado Springs during the spring for we have the best mile and half mile tracks in the state.

Mr. M. W. Tobin, business agent of Barry & Fay, in their new comedy "Irish Aristocracy," was in the city yesterday. The company is now playing at Denver and will appear here one week from Saturday night.

S. W. Eccles, late superintendent of the Denver & New Orleans, was in the city yesterday. He has accepted a position with the freight department of the Denver & Rio Grande, with headquarters at Salt Lake City.

Mr. F. B. Wells succeeded Messrs. Harding & Fowler in the real estate business yesterday. He is a gentleman of experience in real estate and insurance and will carry on the business at the old stand, next door to the El Paso bank.

At Grace church to-day services will be held at 11 a. m. and the fourth lecture on "Christ's Miracles and its Teaching," this evening at 7.30. The rector will be at the church from 3 to 5 this afternoon to see any who may wish to see him.

We understand that John Cassady has purchased ground near the banks of the Fountain in the Southern part of the city, and will build a billiard room and bowling alley. He will also run in connection with the same a beer garden for the accommodation of summer patrons.

A gentleman who came from Leadville yesterday says that there were three fatal cases of small-pox in that city on Wednesday and he reports that the disease is on the increase. On Tuesday night two patients who were in charge of a drunken nurse escaped from the pest house and for a time paraded the streets unmolested.

George S. Knight's creation of "Baron Rudolph" is said to be unequalled by any American actor. Those who were so much dissatisfied with the variety performance given by Leavitt's All Star Specialty company at the opera house last Saturday night need not fear that the coming attraction is of a similar nature.

Jake Quackenboss and Charles Lawrence, who were fined $20 and costs the early part of the week for an assault on Maud Meade, are working out their fines upon the streets, in the custody of Marshal Beall. It seems to be the opinion of the people that all offenders against the city ordinances who are unable to pay their fines should work them out in this way.

The third series of games in the fifteen ball pool tournament at the El Paso club was played last night between C. E. Fisher and H. P. Scott, and won by the latter by a score of six out of eleven games. As the tournament now stands Lundstrom has won one series and lost none, Fisher has lost two series, Godfrey has won one and lost none, and Scott has won one and lost one.

There was a large audience present at the dime concert and literary entertainment in the Methodist Episcopal church last night. In fact, the church was so crowed that seats had to be placed in the aisles to accommodate those who could secure no seats elsewhere. These concerts have been given frequently during the winter, and have not only proved entertaining but remunerative. Last night one of the leading features of the programme was the presence of an orchestra of eleven pieces, lead by George E. White. The flute and organ duet by Mr. A. Winn and Miss Nellie Kerr was exceedingly well received, as was also Miss Andrews' vocal solo. The entertainment concluded with an original temperance drama, written expressly for the occasion, in which six little boys and girls participated.

Says the Denver Inter-Ocean: The first performance of Baron Rudolph at the Tabor Grand, on last Monday evening was highly satisfactory, in so far that the company supporting Mr. and Mrs. Knight is an exceptionally good one, and the play is one of real merit. The house was large and appreciative and retired at the close of the performance in excellent humor. Mr. George S. Knight is not only an excellent dialect comedian, but an actor of merit throughout. His humor as well as his pathos are genuine, which Mr. Bronson Howard, the author of the play, gives the broadest scope in the part of the tramp baron. Mrs. Knight is well remembered by many as Sophie Worrell, who in conjunction with her sisters, Irene and Jennie, enjoyed an excellent reputation as a protean artist. She is still the same sprightly and vivacious creature as of old, with this difference, that time and experience have had a tendency to develop prodigy into the artistic acting. Her singing is also far above that of the average dramatic soubrette. That sterling actor, Chas. Mestayer, as Judge Merrybone, has undoubtedly ingratiated himself into favor with the theatre patrons of Denver, as has Mr. Samuel Dubois as the typical criminal lawyer, Gen. Benjamin Metcalf. In Miss Ida Glenn, a very young lady, who impersonates the part of Ernestine, it is not difficult to discover the born actress, who, it is safe to predict, will make a fine actress some day. Her performance is fresh and exasperatingly piquant. The other members of the company are equally good in their different parts.

Common-sense Remedy.

SALICYLICA.

No More Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia.

Immediate Relief Warranted.
Permanent Cure Guaranteed.

Five years established and never known to fail in a single case, acute or chronic. Refer to all prominent physicians and druggists for the standing of Salicylica.

DESCRIPTION:

THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EXISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMATIC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.

SALICYLICA is known as a common-sense remedy, because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.

It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate those diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.

SALICYLICA works with marvelous effect on this acid and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy of Paris reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

REMEMBER

that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for RHEUMATISM, GOUT and NEURALGIA. The most intense pains are subdued almost instantly.

Thousands of testimonials sent on application.

$1 a Box. 6 Boxes for $5.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR IT.

But do not be deluded into taking imitations or substitutes, or something recommended as "just as good!" Insist on the genuine with the name of Washburne & Co., on each box, which is guaranteed chemically pure under our signature, an indispensible requisite to insure success in the treatment. Take no other, or send to us.
